Coronation Weekend Celebrations 🎉

The coronation of a new monarch is not something that happens very often in the UK (the last time was 1953), so if you are interested in all things Royal, this is the weekend for you. The occasion is being marked around the country, with pubs allowed to open for an additional two hours (until 1am!) on Friday and Saturday the 5th and 6th of May.

London will be the epicentre of events on the Saturday, so if you plan to catch a glimpse of the new King and Queen, we recommend arriving early. There will also be big public viewing screens in St James's Park and in Green Park on the Saturday so you don't miss any of the action. Click below for links to more information on how to join in.
